Yolanda Martinez-San Miguel

Professor Martinez-San Miguel is the author of Saberes americanos: subalternidad y epistemología en los escritos de Sor Juana (Pittsburgh: Instituto Internacional de Literatura Iberoamericana, 1999), Caribe Two Ways: cultura de la migración en el Caribe insular hispánico (Ediciones Callejón, 2003) and From Lack to Excess: 'Minor' Readings of Colonial Latin American Literature (Lewisburg: Bucknell UP, 2008). She edited with Mabel Moraña the compilation of essays "Nictimene sacrilega: homenaje a Georgina Sabat de Rivers" (México: Iberoamericana and Claustro de Sor Juana 2003).  She is currently working on her fourth book project entitled Coloniality of Diasporas: Rethinking Intra-Colonial Migrations in a Pan-Caribbean Context, a comparative study on internal Caribbean migrations between former/actual metropolis and colonies, to question transnational and postcolonial approaches to massive population displacements and their cultural productions.

Laura Lomas

Laura Lomas is Associate Professor of English and Acting Director of the Women's Studies Program at Rutgers University, Newark, where she teaches ethnic and immigrant writing of the United States, literature of the Americas, and Latino/a literature and culture.  She is author of Translating Empire: Jose marti, Migrant Latino Subjects and American Modernities (Duke University Press 2008), which she completed with a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Vanessa Perez Rosario

Professor Perez Rosario is a Visiting Scholar in the Department of Social and Cultural Analysis at New York University.  Her research specialty is Caribbean literature and women’s writing.  She is the editor of Hispanic Caribbean Literature of Migration: Narratives of Displacement (Palgrave Macmillan 2010).  She is currently working on a book length study of Puerto Rican poet Julia de Burgos entitled Becoming Julia de Burgos: Feminism, Transnationalism, Diaspora.  After her fellowship year at New York University, she will return to her faculty position as Assistant Professor of Puerto Rican and Latino Studies at Brooklyn College--City University of New York.